Dress Code

The University cannot unilaterally impose a dress code. Dress codes are a term and condition of employment that must be negotiated with UUP before it can be implemented. A dress code is a requirement to wear a specific type of clothing. This is not the same as a supervisor telling you that your shirt is too revealing, or that a type of clothing is inappropriate. If you are advised by your supervisor that you are required to wear a certain type of clothing, please share this notification with them, and contact the UUP Grievance Chair for Academic or Professional. In the past, we have been able to stop these attempts very easily.
